Sandal slippers and Newport buttons and ties will be much worn by the ladies next spring and summer. The manufacturers are already receiving large orders for them.

Past Grand Commander Wm. Ryan, Louisville, will be in the city next Thursday night for the purpose of conferring the Council degrees, and on Friday night, the 13th inst., at 7 1/2 o'clock, he will publicly install the officers elect of Frankfort Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templar. The installation ceremonies will take place at the Baptist Church, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Fuhs, the St. Clair street confectioner, interfered to prevent a fight between James Sower and a baker in Fuhs' employ, last Saturday night, in Kah's whisky shop, when young John Haly brought a pistol out and put it in Fuhs' face. Fuhs bared his breast and told Haly to shoot, but he laid his pistol on the counter and was withdrawing from the difficulty, when John Noonan rushed up to Fuhs and said, "I'll fix him," at the same time plunging a knife to the hilt in his shoulder. The blade broke off, having penetrated the bone, and it was with much difficulty to the surgeon and great pain to the wounded man that it was extracted. Warrants were sworn out against the offending parties, and they were held for their appearance before the Police Judge. Mr. Fuhs has been threatened with locked-jaw, and is suffering greatly from the wound, so much, indeed, that he has been unable to appear in court as a witness. The above is the statement given to us by Mr. Fuhs, who is a quiet, unoffending, good citizen.

Judge W. L. Pence was surprised last night by a party of young people from Frankfort, who went over to Belle Point to have a good time. The Judge received and entertained them in a royal manner. An elegant lunch was served at ten o'clock, and the whole affair was a pronounced success.

Mr. Ira Julian is announced in this issue as a candidate for the office of Commonwealth's Attorney of this district. He is eminently qualified for the position to which he aspires, and if he should be elected, the people will never have reason to regret it. He is a good lawyer, full of energy, fearless and sober.

Bridgeport.

Mrs. Susan Pruett, of Lexington, is visiting relatives here.

The primary election held last Saturday passed off very quietly, without the use of money or whisky to bribe voters.

Mrs. Lear and Miss Janie Jackson, who have been visiting their sister, Mrs. Samuel Roberts, in Shelby county, have returned.

Messrs. Harvey Blythe and Charley White, of Hardinsville, who have been visiting friends here, have gone to Louisville to engage in business.

Prof. J. H. Shinn gave a school exhibition last Friday night, in which the scholars performed their parts well. Notwithstanding the rain, the house was filled to its utmost, and everyone seemed to enjoy the exercises.

BEG.

A Professional Speaks.

Editor Roundabout:

I see that the Legislature has reduced the pay of jurors—grand and petit—allowing only a dollar and a quarter for one, per day, and only $1 50. per day for the other. This may be all right, though I don't think so; I don't think there ought to be any reduction. Why not begin their retrenchment at the top, instead of at the bottom? How can we "professional jurymen" (as we are stupidly called) make it pay at these prices? Why, sir, if we had to pay toll we could not stand to go to Frankfort and starve all day, both man and beast, for such pay!

Our Legislature ought to remember that there can be a mean, disgusting, penuriousness in public as well as private life. When everything in the way of subsistence is going up, when even the dry goods merchants are advancing in prices on all their wares, it is no time to be cutting down salaries of public officers. If we go on in this direction much farther the result will be, that, in a short time, we shall have no officers worth an old fashioned dried apple-continental-bawbee.

A JUROR.

Benson.

Having emerged from the deep recesses of Sleepy Hollow and taken a short trip across to Negro branch, and there satisfied my craving appetite by a plentiful supply of pumpkin pies, I feel like writing a short communication to your spicy little paper.

Whar's the man who climbed a tree fifty feet high to unlatch his horse last Saturday? There was a grand old "break down" at uncle Billy Pierce's last Monday night. Election whisky spoilt our fun.

Col. Dave Moore says he has three hogs that went into winter quarters, some time ago, in a pumpkin, but during the recent warm weather they ate their darned castle, and now when he sees them he whistles, "Out in the cold," etc.

I am glad to see that my old friend, Miss Belle Pike, is again writing for the ROUNDABOUT, and congratulate her on having taken a partner. I hope to travel that road sometime, and was thinking about calling on Peter Snodgrass' corresponding secretary, but I hear that Honsler has engaged all her time; besides which she says she has a dozen strings to her bow.

Last Saturday was primary election day at Benson, and a jolly time we had. Three men engaged to take one of their friends home, but their strongest endeavors were well nigh a failure until some one solved the problem by exclaiming, "Hitch in another hoss." Another one of my friends, in going home after the election, concluded to take a nap in the mud, of which our roads are composed. Some time after a friend came along and seeing him lying in the mud, exclaimed, "What's the matter, Pete?" My friend roused up from his slumber and answered, "It's not Pete; it's brover Blank; don't say nuthin' about dis; I'll ax Dod to ferdin me to night, and it'll be all right."

WEEKLY ROUNDABOUT.

OLAUDR BUCKLEY.

GEO. A. LEWIS.

BUCKLEY & LEWIS.

Editors and Publishers.

FRANKFORT, FEBRUARY 7, 1880.

Between eight and nine o'clock last Saturday night, Mr. Ben. Wright, who lives at Capt. Sam. Steele's farm, about nine miles from town, was going home, and when nearly to Judge Hord's house, on the Owenton pike, his horse shied to one side of the road and threw him. On remounting he discovered a man near by and called to him. Receiving no answer, he went to Mr. Wm. Daly's house, known as the old toll-gate, but a few steps away, and called for a light. Together with Mr. Taylor Daly he examined the man and found he was dead.

The proper officials were promptly notified, and, acting under orders from Squire Gwin, Deputy Sheriff Hughes went out and brought the body into town and placed it in the court-house. On Sunday morning a jury was impaneled, and the coroner's inquest, which lasted for three or four days, was begun.

The body was that of Sid. Nelson, colored, aged about twenty-six or twenty-seven years, and bore evidence of having been murdered—the ball that did the fatal work having entered his back, passing through the base of his heart, striking the breast bone, rebounding and burying itself in the heart where it was found and extracted by Dr. Sawyer.

The following is the substance of the testimony elicited at the inquest:

Sid. Nelson, the deceased, and Ben. Watts, colored, were going out the Owenton pike to attend a party in the neighborhood of Steadmantown. Sid. was playing a harp, when they were overtaken by a horseman near the fair grounds, and cursed for frightening his horse with the music. Sid. stopped the music and said the road was free to all, and the horseman rode on. Arriving at the old toll-gate, the house now occupied by Mr. Wm. Daly, they were confronted by a man who was armed with a gun. He addressed Sid., who stopped to talk with him, Ben. Watts walking on slowly and calling for Sid. to "come on." When Watts had gone a couple of hundred yards, he heard the report of a gun, and going back, he found his companion lying on the roadside, dead. He hastened to town with the news, and in passing Daly's house, he heard women crying, and one said, "Where did you shoot him?"

The verdict of the jury was that Sidney Nelson came to his death by a gun-shot wound, the gun being in the hands of some person unknown to this jury. The murder remains a mystery.

The City Marshal advertises Frankfort property for sale to pay city taxes on same for the years 1871 to 1879, except the years 1877 and 1878. Have the taxes on all the property in the city been paid for those years? If not, why was it not advertised?

There will be a parlor concert at Mr. W. M. Saffell's, Tuesday evening February 10, 1880, for the benefit of Ascension Guild. Admission, 25 cents. All are invited and a pleasant evening is assured to all those who may attend.

The temperance people will hold their regular weekly meeting at the court-house to-night at 7 o'clock. Good speaking and an enjoyable time is expected. Go and spend an hour pleasantly and profitably.

Orders for fine suits are still rushing in on our friend Berberich, and he never fails to please the most fastidious. As a cutter, he has no superior in Kentucky, and only the fewest number of equals. His prices are in keeping with the times.

Col. Lewis E. Harvie received a very flattering call this week, signed by about seventy-five of some of our best citizens, to address a public meeting, at such time and place as would suit his convenience, on the subject of river improvement. He declined to make an appointment, but, being a man of well-known public spirit, he will address a meeting of the citizens on any measure of public interest whenever occasion demands a man to talk for the right and condemn the wrong.

It may be a matter of interest to tax-payers of Frankfort to know that a movement is on foot to get a bill through the Legislature authorizing the city of Frankfort to issue $50,000 worth of bonds, to be used to complete the water-works and to fund the floating indebtedness of the city. Senator McQuiddy has already obtained leave to introduce the bill in the Senate, and as soon as Mayor Major can prepare it, it will be introduced. The city is in debt about $13,000—$25,000 of which is due on the school bonds, $7,000 floating debt, and a little over $10,000 is due the Deposit Bank for money borrowed. This bank is, and has been for some time, lending money to the city at eight per cent. interest, which money is used to defray current expenses.

The city charter provides that "Councilmen shall be elected biennially on the first Saturday in January, by the qualified voters of said city who shall have paid their poll-tax for the preceding year, and all arrearages and taxes by them due to said city." Now if the charter allows only such persons to vote as "have paid their poll-tax for the preceding year, and all arrearages due by them to said city," how does it happen that a member of the City Council whose name appears on the poll-books as a voter at the last city election, has his property advertised for sale to pay taxes due for the year 1876? Will somebody please explain if candidates for Councilman have special privileges, or if they are allowed, through favoritism, to vote without having complied with the requirements of the charter. We pause for a reply.

WEEKLY ROUNDABOUT.

FRANKFORT, FEBRUARY 7, 1886.

The steamer Valley brought up 800 sacks of corn last Sunday.

There was not a white person buried in the Frankfort cemetery during the month of January.

A new shirt, a bed-stead and five dollars was the price paid for a vote last Saturday at the primary election.

Only two persons were buried in the Frankfort cemetery during the month of January, both of whom were colored.

Mr. J. Russell Williams has purchased, of Mr. W. H. Williamson, the house recently occupied by Mr. Sidney French, South Side.

The sleighs have been out in full force this week, and the sleigh-bells jingled merrily. This is the first sleighing we have had this winter.

Mr. Jno. W. Payne has purchased of Mr. M. E. Jett the lot on Cross street, South Frankfort, lying between the residences of Mr. Jett and Mr. John Cain, for which he paid $300. He expects to build on it in the spring.

West Liberty had a big fire last week Judge Cox's new coal house was entirely consumed, the loss being estimated at $100. The Mountain Scorcher devotes half a column to it, but don't say whether or not the property was insured.

The display of tropical fruits in Mr. Bohannan's show window is most tempting. An investigation will reveal the fact that appearances are not deceptive. She keeps the sweetest and juiciest oranges, the most luscious grapes and best bananas in town.

It is impossible to tell where a person lives in Frankfort, except to say that he lives near the wooden bridge, or the railroad bridge, or the arsenal, or the penitentiary, or the—or—let us have the streets named and the houses numbered at once. It will cost but a trifle.

The Gavel is a Masonic monthly magazine, published by Messrs. Marrs & Thomas, at Danville, in the interest of Free Masonry. It is ably edited by W. LaRue Thomas, and its typography is faultless. The subscription price is only one dollar per annum, and every Mason in the State should subscribe for it at once.

Some thieves broke into the smoke-house of Mr. Wm. Stephens, on the Versailles 'pike, last week, and stole all the bacon that had been put up for family use during the year. The meat was nicely smoked, and it was the intention of Mr. Stephens to put it away the next day, out of the reach of the thieves. That neighborhood is infested with petty thieves.

The Heroes of '76 will be rendered at Major Hall, next Thursday evening, for the benefit of the suffering poor of Ireland. The announcement of the object of the entertainment should be enough to fill the house; but when it is known that all who go will get more than their money's worth in witnessing a first-class entertainment the hall will be overflowing.

In order to get the latest and most reliable news in this age of progress, one must go away from home. The Mountain Scorcher, under the head of "The Legislature," informs the public that "A bill has passed, creating eighteen judicial districts, and abolishing criminal courts in the State." This is news, indeed, even to the Legislature, where the bill is said to have passed.

There were more people in town last Monday than has been here on any court-day for many months. There was very little stock offered for sale, and that was not of a superior quality. Excitement over the election ran high, and two or three fistfights came near being the result. The whisky shops were liberally patronized, and the police had what they could do to keep the boys straight.

A rumor was current on the streets last Sunday morning that the steamer Dora, No. 2, had sunk at some point up the river, and that all on board, but one person, were drowned. We were unable to ascertain anything definite on the subject until Wednesday, when the little Dora put in an appearance at Henderson's wharf, "right side up," and all right. There was no truth in the rumor.

Our North Benson correspondent gives Frankfort some hard licks this week, which hurt all the more because they are too true. It is not an uncommon thing to see some of our peace officers drunk on the streets—men who should set examples of sobriety and good order totally disregarding the laws they are sworn to observe and enforce. Shame on such officers, and shame on men who cast their votes for such.

Why are men who are crazed with alcohol allowed to shout and curse on the streets on election days and court-days more than on other occasions? Are the police afraid to try to arrest a man in a crowd? Let us have better order on the streets in future. It is actually unsafe for a lady to go shopping on public days, because she is liable to be insulted or jostled against by some drunken ruffian.

One of the ropes of the elevator at the Cotton Mills in this city, broke last Saturday morning, while Alex. Goins, a youth employed in the mills, was upon the platform, causing it to fall with him from the third to the first floor. He was taken up in an insensible condition, and it was thought he had received fatal injuries, but he has about recovered, and it is thought will escape with no more serious hurt than a few bruises.

A horrible accident occurred about ten o'clock last Saturday night, in the old brick tenement house near the foot of Shelby street, South Side. Addie Ward, a colored girl, about sixteen years of age, was sitting in front of the fire, and, falling asleep, her clothing became ignited, and she was soon enveloped in flames. She awoke and ran excitedly about the room, screaming for help, and setting fire to the bedding on which her helpless mother lay sick. Assistance soon arrived, but too late to do more than extinguish the flames in the room. The girl's clothes burned to ashes, and she was almost roasted alive. She lingered, in great agony, until about four o'clock Sunday afternoon, when death came to her relief.

Some boys in the neighborhood of Hatchitt & Ziegler's saw-mill are in the habit of going to the mill on Sundays, while the em, Lyes are at church, and picking up and carrying off screws, nuts, and other pieces of machinery lying around, and sometimes cutting the belts. Now the parents of these boys, who are known to the proprietors, are warned that unless the practice is stopped, the boys will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

An innocent looking individual, evidently from the rural districts, came into our office one day last week, and almost overcame with nervousness, he timidly asked, "Is your paper full?" On being answered in the negative, he said he had a beautiful poem on "Spring" which he wanted to see in print. He also informed us that it was written by a little school-boy—his first effort—and it would make him "feel so proud to see it in a newspaper." We told him that our terms were two dollars per line, but for the sake of encouraging the youthful poet in his taste for literature we would publish it for fifty cents per verse. He didn't want to invest any money that way—"just thought, maybe, it would help to fill up, you know." He inquired for the Gazette office, and sorrowfully took his departure, in search of a paper that would publish the poetry (?) "just to fill up."

Some young ladies from Louisville, who are spending a few weeks in the city, desired to call on a certain young lady in South Frankfort, and asked to be informed where she lived. They were told to go across the Wooden Bridge, and, at the first street, turn to the left, go about two or three squares, when they would come to a pump and "she lives in the first house beyond the pump," which, by the way, is much more definite than to say "she lives at No. 329, East Second street, South Frankfort." If the City Council would post the names of the streets on the street corners, perhaps the members can be induced to put up such signs as the following, for the benefit of strangers visiting the city: "This is a pump." "This is the Wooden Bridge." "This is the penitentiary." "This is the arsenal," &c., as, by so doing, strangers would experience no difficulty in going around the city without bothering our citizens for information.

JOB WORK A SPECIALTY

WEEKLY ROUNDABOUT.

We learn from the Mountain Screecher that the stores in West Liberty were "out of candles three days last week." Guess that's where Moses was.

Last week Mr. S. Black sold one of his fine short-horn bull calves to Col. R. W. Scott, for Mr. Humphreys, of Grand Gulf, Miss.—price not given. It is unnecessary to say he was a fine specimen—the fact of such a breeder as Col. Scott buying it is a sufficient guarantee that it was. He also sold two fine Berk-shire pigs.

"Tennie" Gray has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Richard Morris.

Miss Mattie McKee was the guest of Miss Emma Morris last week.

Mrs. Dr. Morris left last week for Louisville, to take a course of medical treatment.

Miss Bessie Clarke has been visiting the Misses Church for several days, but, to the sorrow of all, has returned to Frankfort.

Dr. F. F. Conway and wife, Mrs. A. W. Smith and her two children, J. J. Hampton, and John H. Morris have been the guests of Mrs. Dr. Morris recently. VIOLA.

North Benson.

Sister Stockton has been quite ill, but is now convalescing.

Miss Belle Pike was seen a day or so ago wandering up Yount's branch, looking for catnip. I reckon "Stony" and "Viey" are ailing.

One of the chargers that was ridden to death in quest of fiddle strings has been resurrected, and now his master refuses $50 for him.

Old Turk attended the primary down to Benson depot last Saturday, with a bottle of juice. Old Fisher wanted a drink. Turk gave him the bottle and Fisher has it yet.

A big Leap Year dance on Indian Fork creek last week. Hoosier John and Geo. Frank were the belles of the evening. Hoosier held the baby while George waltzed, and vice versa.

"Johnny P." the gay young widower of Benson, has oiled his gorgeous whiskers, smoothed his wrinkled front, and is now trying to form an alliance with one of our neighbor girls. You can't come it, Johnny.

Madam Rumor informs us that Col. O'Bannin will shortly lead to the altar one of the fairest daisies of Mink Run. The only objection that has been urged so far by the bride's parents is the extreme youth of the bridegroom.

I have not forgotten Miss Pike's insinuation in regard to the liquor drinking and drunken conduct of the denizens of this place. I think Miss Belle, in this particular, rather stretched her blanket. The fact is that nine tenths of the drunken men seen here are those just returned from that delectable city, Kentucky's Capital; or, if this is not exactly the case, the corn juice that produces these drunks is brought from that city in bottles and jugs, either by the drunks themselves or by some of those lovers of "the dear people" with whom that modern Solomon is filled. But nothing better can be expected from the unhallowed influences of a place where the holy Sabbath day is made one of riotous drunken conduct in the streets; where the Sunday laws are totally ignored; where the police officers and other magistrates set the example of disregarding both the laws of God and man, as well as the rules of common decency. I am, therefore, opposed to Belle Pike, or turpitude, or, in fact, we don't want to be any nearer Frankfort than we now are. PETER SCHOENGLASS.

Belle Point.

Mr. James T. Graham is quite ill. Kentucky Avenue is now receiving a good coat of sone.

Rabbit hunters are plentiful now. They report game of all kinds scarce.

Mr. Wm. Scott has accepted the position of clerk in Mr. F. P. Lewis' store.

The Gazette has a carrier over here. Wont the Roundabout give us one, too?

Mrs. S. V. Pence has been quite ill for a couple of weeks, but is now convalescent.

One day last week we counted thirty-three hogsheds of tobacco going to the depot for shipment.

Mr. Tom Pence, of Flat creek, has moved to town. He is second sawyer at the Champion Mills.

Miss Florence Collins, near this place, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Hackley, of Bridgeport, this week.

Miss Cornie Shipp, a very accomplished young lady of Midway, is visiting the Misses Todd, at Lake Park.

Our little town will have to inaugurate something new to furnish items for two papers—twice a week for one of them.

The Todd brothers, we understand, are going to put in a large crop of tobacco this spring—it Dave gets his corn gathered in time.

One of our young men has been making frequent visits to South Frankfort of late. Something up, sure. Perhaps this little Snow will explain it all.

Mr. Charley Bailey, the horse man of Midway, was over Monday looking at Judge Pence's fine horse, Wm. Ford, but didn't buy him. The Judge keeps him to go on special errands.

One of our young men, while visiting his dulcinea last Sunday night, lost his horse, but found him before daylight, and from the number of visits he's made this week, we'd think 'twould be safe to infer that he'd lost his heart now. We say go in, Ed.

Out of thirty employees at the Champion Saw-mills we learn that twenty-five of them are Murphys. That accounts for so few accidents at this mill. Too much cannot be said in praise of the head sawyer, Mr. Wm. Arvin, who was a habitual drunkard for nearly thirty years, until two years ago, when he signed the Murphy pledge, and has never violated it in any way since. Hurrah for the Murphys, and may they have large crowds next week! Count Belle Point in, for we have some strong ones over here yet.

Bagdad.

Miss Minnie Webber has been visiting, for the last fortnight, friends in Eminence. She returned home Wednesday.

A grand social party at Mr. Freeman's on Wednesday night last. Our young folks enjoyed themselves hugely. Why can't we have more of these sociable occasions?

Prof. Wiley, of Jacksonville, is trying to get up a class in vocal music at this place. We trust he may succeed, as a little instruction in that science will do our young folks no harm.

Old Black Bill continues his daily trips to Christausburg, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. His drops he must have; and he is not the only one hereabouts who is fond of his drops.

The merry jingle of the sleigh bells are being heard within our borders. George Sacra and Reuben Bryant have two splendid turnouts, and happy is the demoiselle who has an invitation to take a ride.

The funeral of Mrs. Thos. Lewis, from the Baptist Church last Monday, was the most imposing ever seen here, showing the high regard which this community entertained for the deceased, who was indeed a most estimable lady.

The best boarding house in the State is at this place—the Duncan House. It is kept by Miss Mary Duncan and her sister, Mrs. Roswell. The fare is superb, and the rates low. Travelers could not find a place where they would feel more at home.

Last Saturday night, Mr. Pack B. of Jacksonville, came to our village and opened a small game, in an old car, with one Taylor Simmons, of color. Guess there was a bottle present, for in a short time a fuss was kicked up, and Taylor ran away with the stakes. SURELY.
